Atelectasis: Relapsing Polychondritis.pdf. 0 KB. 20 Jan The symptoms of atelectasis, sometimes referred to as the collapsed lung, can include shortness of breath (dyspnea), coughing, congestion, purulent secretions from the nose and/or throat (sputum or expectoration), chest pain and breathing difficulties. - Persoalan asasiyah - Filsafat Pendidikan - Penulisan Analisis - Menuju Rezultat. S.. It has been observed that atelectasis occurs after a number of reasons, such as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, shortness of breath, lung disorders like asthma, pneumonia, bronchitis, pulmonary embolism, lung cancer, post-operative complications after surgery such as lung volume reduction surgery, lung abscess, lower respiratory tract infection, trauma, smoking, sedation, inhalation of smoke, smoke inhalation, smoke inhalation during a fire, smoke inhalation during a fire while the person is sleeping, child abuse, drug abuse, overdose, exercise, overdrinking of alcohol, and some other conditions. Atelectasis is different from a pneumonia. Atelectasis occurs when the alveoli (the air sacs that are present in the lungs) collapse to a certain degree. This triggers inflammation which in turn causes swelling. Pulmonary embolism occurs when blood clots (thrombi) form in one of the arteries of the lungs causing obstruction of the flow of blood to the lungs. Field of the Invention This invention relates to heat exchangers and particularly to heat exchangers for the conservation of heat and particularly a heat exchanger with a backup or reserve heat exchanger when any one or more of the heat exchangers being used with the heat exchanger with a backup or reserve heat exchanger will not be capable of providing the necessary heat or heat transfer. 2. Description of the Prior Art Prior art heat exchangers, particularly those used to conserve heat in a cold climate during the fall and winter, typically included an outer shell, a first heat exchanger disposed within the outer shell and an inner shell disposed within the outer shell and including a heat exchange liquid flowing through the inner shell. Examples of prior art heat exchangers are shown in U.S. Pat. Nos. 1,179,086; 1,903,214; 2,678,658; 2,810,977; 3,500,392; 3,566,143; 3,651,206; 3,728,596; 3,823,570; 3,867,929; 3,918,648; 4,013,043; 4,151,686; 4,306,655; 4,333,496; 4,325,178; 4,340,345 and 4,448,068. The American Way Most of us would think that perhaps if a marriage breaks down, it's because the couple has reached the limits of love. But we may be surprised to learn that high divorce rates are often caused by the couple's inability to love. The problem is that marital love often goes unrecognized and unacknowledged.
